ELLE

Behind the Scenes of Three Generations of Songwriters With Sheryl Crow, Maren Morris, and Audrey McGraw

The episode was filmed at the iconic Waldorf Astoria New York.

By: Samuel Maude
Impressions: 24,193,259

It's fitting to film a video with Sheryl Crow, Maren Morris, and Audrey McGraw in a ballroom, seeing as the trio is musical royalty. Crow is a legend with countless hits under her belt, Morris has become a country-pop mainstay, and McGraw is at the dawn of her career, with two iconic parents, Tim McGraw and Faith Hill, in her back pocket. The powerful three made their way to the Waldorf Astoria New York earlier this month to film ELLE's Three Generations of Songwriters, the second installment in a new series that began with an R&B episode featuring Mariah Carey, Kelly Rowland, and Ravyn Lenae.

Courtesy of the Waldorf Astoria New York The space has a regal feel, with artwork adorning the property's ceiling.

While the video filmed in the ballroom, preparations began well beforehand. The rooms offered space for hair and makeup teams, with excellent light pouring in through the windows, and the regal atmosphere set the stage for stunning behind-the-scenes moments, with Crow, Morris, and McGraw capturing glam shots and videos throughout the hotel. Lex Yard, the on-site restaurant, also provided dining options for the talent during the shoot. Helmed by chef Michael Anthony, the brasserie is noted for its caviar service and seafood options.

Omegarender. Lex Yard served as a great dining option for the talent.

If rest and relaxation were needed after a long day of filming, the Guerlain Wellness Spa offered a wide range of treatments, including facials and massages. The hotel also features a state-of-the-art fitness center.

Watch the video above to see how the Waldorf Astoria New York served as the perfect setting for Three Generations of Songwriters.

https://www.elle.com/culture/music/a69031423/behind-the-scenes-three-generations-waldorf-astoria-new-york/